ARTICLE III.—Membership.

Section 1. Any member shall be eligible to membership in this Society who, being of the age of twenty-one years or over, and a citizen of good repute in the community, is the lineal descendant of an ancestor who was at all times unfailing in his loyalty to and rendered actual service in the cause of American Independence, either as an officer, soldier, seaman, marine, militiaman or minute-man, in the armed forces of the Continental Congress or of any one of the several Colonies or States; or as a signer of the Declaration of Independence; or as a member of a Committee of Safety or Correspondence; or as a member of any Continental, Provincial or Colonial Congress or Legislature; or as a civil officer either of one of the colonies or states, or of the national government; or as a recognized patriot who performed actual service by overt acts of resistance to the authority of Great Britain.

Section 2. Applications for membership shall be made to any State Society, in duplicate, upon blank forms prescribed by the General Board of Managers, and shall in each case set forth the name, occupation and residence of the applicant, line of descent, and the name, residence and services of his ancestor or ancestors in the Revolution, from whom he derives eligibility. The applicant shall make oath that the statements of his application are true to the best of his knowledge and belief. Upon the approval of an application by the State Society, to which it is made, one copy shall be transmitted to the Registrar General of the National Society; who shall examine further the eligibility of the applicant. If satisfied that the member is not eligible, he shall return the application for correction. And in case of such return the State Society shall, on failure to satisfy the Registrar General of the eligibility of such applicant, drop his name from membership.

Section 3. Each State Society shall judge of the qualifications of its members and of those proposed for membership, subject to the provisions of this Constitution, and shall regulate all matters pertaining to its own affairs. It shall have authority to establish local chapters within its own jurisdiction and to endow the chapters with such power as it may deem proper, not inconsistent with this Constitution. It shall have authority, after due notice and impartial trial, to expel any member who, by conduct unbecoming a gentleman, shall render himself unworthy to remain a member of the Society.

Section 4. ALEXANDER BLAIR is on the Pennsylvania rolls as a private soldier in the Revolutionary War, from Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, having entered at Carlisle in 1778.

WILLIAM BLAIR, when under military age, in 1778, served as his father's substitute two months at Bald Eagle and Penns Valley, Pennsylvania; enlisted for five months in May, 1779, in Capt. Henry Dougherty's Company and served under General Sullivan in his campaign against the British, Tories and Indians in New York, being permanently disabled at the battle of Chemung, notwithstanding which, he enlisted in June, 1780, in Captain Gilbert McCoy's Rangers and served on the frontier until discharged in January, 1781. His grave is at Kossuth, Iowa, and is the only completely identified grave of a Revolutionary soldier in the state.

ARCHIBALD JOB, though a "Friend," was so zealous in the patriot cause in the Revolution that he was declared "out of fellowship" by the "Monthly Meeting" in January, 1777, but later became Captain of the "Job Scouting Party" and active in the cause of liberty, and is said to have given such valuable information to Washington as led the latter to put the Brandywine between his army and the British September 9, 1779. He also aided in providing subsistence for Lafayette's army in its march through Maryland in 1781.

MORRIS JOB was also disowned by Friends' Society for activity in the patriot cause and for making gun barrels. After Brandywine they were transferred to "Hollingsworth's Guard." "Job's Forge" was one of the sources of the supply of gun barrels and bayonets for the patriots of the Eastern shore.

In 1782 Morris Job was employed in the Navy Yard at Baltimore and later helped build the frigate "Constellation."

RICHARD BOND was a member of the Maryland House of Delegates 1776 to 1795.

GORDON HUTCHINS after the battle of Lexington organized a company and joined the Regiment of Col. John Stark, of the New Hampshire troops, and took part in the battle of Bunker Hill. When Burgoyne's advance in 1777 was known in New Hampshire, the General Assembly, of which he was a member, was called together. As soon as it was decided to raise troops to oppose Burgoyne, Col. Hutchins mounted his horse, and traveling all night with all haste, reached Concord, New Hampshire, Sabbath afternoon, before the close of religious worship. Dismounting at the meeting house door, he walked up the aisle while the minister was preaching. The latter paused in his sermon and said: "Col. Hutchins, are you the bearer of any message?" "Yes," replied the Colonel; "Gen. Burgoyne with his army is on his march to Albany. Gen. Stark has offered to take the command of the New Hampshire men, and if we will turn out we can cut off Burgoyne's march." Then the minister said: "My hearers, those of you who are willing to go better leave at once." Every man left the meeting house. The result at Bennington is well known.

He afterward joined the Continental Army in New York, and was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel in Col. Nahum Baldwin's New Hampshire Regiment.

JOSEPH CROCKETT served as a Captain in the Seventh Regiment of Foot, Col. Alexander McClenahan, also known as Third and Seventh Virginia Regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. Keith in the Revolutionary War, having been commissioned May 7, 1776; was commissioned May 7, 1776, Major of the Fifth, and Eleventh Regiment Virginia Foot, Colonel William Russell. Besides other services he raised two companies for General Daniel Morgan's Rifle Regiment. He was in the battles of Point Pleasant, White Plains, Monmouth, Brandywine, Princeton and Trenton, and suffered with the army at Valley Forge, and was at the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga. After the battle of Monmouth he became Lieutenant Colonel. In August, 1779, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, he joined General George Rogers Clarke, and in that year led the Illinois or Crockett Regiment in the celebrated campaigns in the Northwest, conducted by that General, remaining beyond the mountains until January, 1782. In a letter written in 1818 to Henry Clay, he says, "I was in many of the battles and skirmishes with the Northwestern Indians on the Miami and helped destroy Chillicothe, and many other Indian towns in the Northwestern territories. * * * I served under General Morgan in his many battles and skirmishes with the British near Philadelphia, and in New Jersey and New York. At Red Bank two horses were shot under me by the enemy's sharpshooters concealed in the river thickets. I believe I was engaged in as many battles and skirmishes as any officer or private who served under Generals Washington, Greene, Morgan, Clarke and others. I was often in as many as four or five in a week."

In civil life in Kentucky's early history, he was even more efficient and conspicuous than in the Army of the Revolution. He was a member of Kentucky's first Constitutional Convention; was United States Marshal for the District of Kentucky during Jefferson's two terms in the Presidency, and was the first officer to arrest Aaron Burr.

THOMAS HART HOOKER, SR., enlisted May 10, 1775, as a private in the Second Company of Col. Spencer's Regiment of Connecticut troops, and marched with the Regiment to Boston, being among the first troops from that state to reach that city. In order to be consistent in fighting for freedom, he freed his own slaves before marching. He also had every man in his own company supplied with shoes before he left Hartford. Accustomed to luxury, he refused to take any body servant into the army. His regiment was stationed at Roxbury in the trenches facing the British works on Boston Neck, and their service was very severe. He died of disease in camp on the 26th day of November, 1775, and was buried with others in a common burial ground. After the evacuation the attempt to identify his remains was unavailing, and "today his dust, with that of other patriot soldiers who gave their lives for their country's cause, rests peacefully beneath the noise and turmoil of the streets of the City of Boston."
